One of the most important things to modern employee is that their work space is comfortable, fun and promotes collaboration. The space that creates this can attract the best employees.
It is very important to create spaces specifically designed for innovation and collaboration. By replacing fixed desks with new flexible spaces designed for different activities and different postures, sitting or standing, you can be confident that your employees can find a space to do their best work.

Spaces designed for socialisation, recreation and making connections with fellow employees will create a positive, agile and fun environment.

The Stockholm is one of many solutions Sylex Ergonomics have available to create this work space.
